ABOUT US

Lydia Loukeli, the artist behind eλm ceramics was born and grew up in Athens, Greece. She is a self taught ceramics artist. She comes from a Civil Engineering background and for years she has been working full time in the corporate world. During the pandemic she reflected on herself and what she wanted her life to be which led her to a very intense relationship with art and clay. She is really drawn to in the material itself and is trying to push the boundaries of its properties and those of unexpected high firing processes so she is making her own textured glazes.

Karen Helle, the maker behind Karen Helle Ceramics grew up on the west coast of Denmark but has lived in London, UK most of her adult life. She is often inspired by the rugged Danish costal landscape and weather and finds herself drawn to the colours of the seasons.

Our love for ceramics brought us together in many unexpected ways and led to this partnership. Each brings their own background, aesthetic and ways of working.

OUR CREATIVE PROCESS

We love working with our clients and always strive to collaborate and create unique designs to suit the requirements for each project. We want to keep our clients involved in the creative process finding the fine balance between art and functionality.

All of our pieces are hand made to order and each piece from a collection will have slight variations as you would expect from hand made artisan objects. Changes can be made to catalogue items in terms of size and glaze (colour).

WANT TO WORK WITH US?

To purchase items from the catalogue:

You can simply email us to place an order and we will arrange an initial meeting to discuss your requirements, quantities and lead time for delivery. Please note that all of our pieces are hand made to order and each piece from a collection will have slight variations as you would expect from hand made artisan objects. Changes can be made to catalogue items in terms of size and glaze (colour).

Don't see what you need?

Why not commission us to make something completely bespoke? This may sound really obvious but it is surprising how often people think any artist can make anything. Both Lydia and Karen have a distinctive style that you should consider before placing a commission. Once you have decided that we are the right fit for your commission, please do get in touch!

When we are first approached to make a commission it's all about asking questions. We need to find out as much as I can about what you want so that the design brief can be drawn up and agreed. We will then start working on a design. This is very much a collaborative process and we welcome feedback and discussions along the way. Once we have agreed the design, we will draw up a contract and confirm delivery.

Want something just for you?

We do make exclusive designs if required. The process follows a regular commissioning process but it is important that you mention this during the initial meeting so that we can ensure we are not including elements we have already produced for other businesses.
